We are the University of Georgia Mary Frances Early College of Education. In February 2020, the UGA College of Education was officially named in honor of Mary Frances Early, UGA's first African American graduate and a pioneering music educator who played an integral role in the campaign for racial equality in Georgia and across the South. Through this naming, we commemorate Early's indelible impact at UGA as well as her distinguished career in music education.

LABS AND CLINICS

Driven by faculty research, our labs and clinics give students the opportunity to work alongside leaders in their field. Opportunities to get involved include research centers focusing on new ways to learn, labs exploring the connections between our brains and our bodies, and clinics that give students experience working in their chosen field.

DOUBLE THE OPPORTUNITY

The College of Education offers 23 Double Dawg pathways in both teaching and non-teaching professions. This program allows motivated students the academic challenges they crave, as well as expanded options and earning power after graduation.

LEARN BY DOING

Our students have a passion and commitment to improve the world around us. As one of the largest public colleges of education in the country, it is our mission to empower the next generation of leaders in education, counseling, health and well-being, and movement sciences. We do this through immersive experiences where our students learn by doing, and our faculty encourage exploration, community engagement, and pushing boundaries.
